Think Telehealth

Hunter New England Health

Hunter New England Health provides a range of public health services to the Hunter, New England and Lower Mid North Coast regions, as well as specialist services throughout northern NSW. Residents of this area currently travel more than 20 million kilometres a year to attend booked appointments with us.

Our aim is to keep people healthy and in their communities, and to provide people with timely and equitable access to world-class clinical services. Telehealth is one of our strategies to achieve these goals.

What is telehealth?

Telehealth is the secure transmission of a clinical consultation by videoconference over the internet. This is a way for you to have consultations with health professionals without the need and inconvenience of you travelling to hospital. A Hunter New England Health clinician can connect to you over the internet whether you are at home, at work, in a residential aged care facility, at your GP or your local community hospital.

What happens in a telehealth consultation?

- You connect to your clinician via a secure video conference.
- You will see yourself on your screen, as well as your provider.
- During the consultation you can discuss your health, concerns and questions as you would if you were with them in person.
- If you wish, you may have someone with you for your appointment.

How secure and private is telehealth?

- The software Hunter New England Health uses is similar to Skype, though is completely secure, encrypted and confidential.
- Your personal information, and the consultation, will be private and confidential.
- The consultation will not be recorded.
- The same privacy provisions and legislation relevant to traditional appointments apply to all telehealth appointments.

What will it cost?

- There is no cost to you from Hunter New England Health.
- You may be asked to give consent for Hunter New England Health to bulk bill Medicare.
- Telehealth will use some of your internet download capacity.
- If your GP takes part, you will need to ask them if there are any costs to you.
